This perch is remarkably similar to Bioflex's Gel Sprint but with dual density padding instead of gel. This leads to it weighing a little more, but the comfort levels are at least the same, with some testers arguing that it was even more comfortable.

It's very well made (as are all Velo-manufactured saddles) and is ideally suited to spending hours on, or handling those short, sharp commutes where you want something to take the sting out. The best thing about this saddle, though, is the outstanding price tag.
